ISACorps Outreach

- Assist students (and families) overcome academic, financial, and social barriers to higher education through presentations, workshops, and one-on-one meetings
- Represent ISAC at college fairs, financial aid nights, conferences, and related outreach events

Who is Considered a First Gen Student

 - What if parent(s) with the degree is no longer in the picture?
- ISAC welcomes all and assists all

First Generation College Student Experience

Corps Member Experience

Corps members were surveyed:

- Feeling alone in their journey
- Lack of knowledge of campus resources
- Difficulty navigating college terminology
- Difficulty with financial aid process
- Experiencing culture shock once on campus

Lexi & Celeste

Lexi - "I came from a small town of about 1,750 and graduated from a class of 88. Transitioning to a school of 20,000+ people was difficult, especially because I didn't really know anyone else there besides my brother, but I had a lot of encouragement from family to go to college." - St. Bede Academy

Celeste - "I struggled with being away from my family. I struggled with deciding what to pursue, and school in general, but I decided to pursue a degree because of how much higher education was stressed to me. I always had it in my head that I needed to go." - Thornton Fractional South HS

Anayeli & Emberly

Anayeli - "My parents are immigrants and they always pushed me to pursue a higher education as a way to have a better life and have access to mobility. I also value higher education because knowledge is something that can't be taken away from you and has value." - Morton East HS & Morton College

Emberly- "I struggled to connect with other students and make friends. I was a commuter student, and I would typically describe myself as introverted, so I struggled to make friends when I was in college. I always knew I wanted to do something in education, and I knew that to do that, I needed to go to college. I am now pursuing a graduate degree." - Mt. Zion HS

Leah & Iris

Leah - "It was hard for me to transition from a large city like Chicago to a small town. Honestly, the moment I stepped foot on campus, it was a complete culture shock. My transition to college was a struggle in itself, but when I entered my senior year, I also struggled with not knowing what I wanted to do with my life after college. I felt so much internal pressure from myself and external pressure from others to figure out what I wanted to do with the rest of my life, and I had no idea."
- George Westinghouse College Prep

Iris - "Acclimating to the culture of being at a PWI (predominately white institution), along with finding a 'home away from home,' finding support systems, and dealing with imposter syndrome was a challenge." - Jones College Prep
